Emilie MONDO – Biography

Emilie Mondo is a F.R.S.-FNRS research fellow at the Université libre de Bruxelles, Belgium. She is a Ph.D. student in political science, European studies. Her research project deals with EU morality politics on the issues of abortion and human embryonic stem cell research. The objective is to use the American literature on religion and politics in order to test the hypothesis of the emergence of European culture wars. She develops a qualitative methodological approach based on a discourse analysis of semi-structured interviews.
